Alleged Aid to Libya To Be Probed by U.S.

Secretary of State Alexander Haig has ordered an investigation into the possibility that Libya is receiving American help in spreading international terrorism, the State Department said yesterday.

Haig ordered the investigation after reading a report by a Boston Globe investigating team, suggesting that U.S. military and intelligence personnel had been engaged in putting together terrorist weapons in Libya, and that Libya had some inside help in buying American-made weapons in the international arms market.

The report by the Globe team suggested that the Americans operated at least with the knowledge and perhaps the encouragement of their superiors in the U.S. government.

Another current article by John Cooley in Foreign Policy magazine said that the CIA warned Libyan president Muammar Kadafi of at least one plot to overthrow him, a warning that permitted him to arrest the plotters and jail them in 1969.
